Local Landscaping Firm Donates Front Yard Makeover to Reality TV Show Pilot

(Seattle, Washington) November 8, 2004– Lifestyle Landscapes, a Seattle-based landscaping design/build firm, recently donated a front yard design and installation to the filming of a HomeTeam episode in Bellevue, WA.

HomeTeam, hosted by Troy McClain of The Apprentice surprises contestants with the gift of homeownership. Friends and family of the winner help to beautify the home before it is presented to the unsuspecting winner. Lifestyle Landscapes redesigned the front yard of the Bellevue home to create a more welcoming space, create focal points and areas of interest and make the front porch more inviting.

HomeTeam will create a series of six episodes in hopes of gaining placement in A&E's line-up. One other episode was already created in West Seattle. The other four episodes will take place elsewhere in the nation. To learn more about HomeTeam, visit www.hometeam.com.

“Giving back to the community is an important part of Lifestyle Landscape’s culture,” remarks Arlene Wing, President and Chief Operating Officer of Lifestyle Landscapes. “Our team greatly enjoyed donating the gift of a dramatic garden transformation to an unsuspecting winner.”
